

CAUTION!

The following Self-Manual Lymph Drainage sequence summary is to be used only as a supplement to Klose Training's Self-MLD video. This summary is not detailed enough to provide complete instructions for the sequence. This summary is to be used only as a quick reference guide after the sequence has been thoroughly learned by watching the Self-MLD video.

Self-MLD sequence for the RIGHT UPPER EXTREMITY

The goal is to activate the lymphatic system and move edema fluid from the affected right upper extremity to the axillary lymph nodes (arm pit) of the unaffected left side and the inguinal (groin) lymph nodes of the right side.

Repeat each step as often as desired. This self-treatment may take 25-30 minutes but can be shortened or extended as necessary. Even 10 minutes of trunk treatment will be beneficial.

Abdominal preparation

1. Start with alternating pressure and release on the various sections of the abdomen.
2. Perform deep abdominal breathing with assisted hand pressure.

Neck preparation

3. Perform shoulder circles.
4. Perform side-to-side head and neck stretches.
5. Perform side-to-side head & neck turns.
6. Clear the affected area above the collar bone with stationary circles.

Trunk preparation

7. Clear the unaffected axillary lymph nodes (left arm pit) with circular movements.
8. Clear the unaffected left chest area and breast with stationary circles.
9. Stretch skin using stationary circles over the breast bone from affected to unaffected side.
10. Move fluid from the affected right upper quadrant toward the left unaffected side
11. Prepare the inguinal (groin) lymph nodes with stationary circles.
12. Move fluid down the affected side of your trunk toward your groin using stationary circles.

Arm treatment

13. Move fluid from your affected shoulder to the area above your collar bone, gradually incorporating more of the upper arm including the inner side. Always push toward your shoulder and beyond, e.g. toward the pre-treated, unaffected side and down to the groin lymph nodes.
14. Perform stationary circles in the affected axilla (arm pit). CAUTION: Check first with your primary therapist to make sure this is an appropriate technique for you!
15. Treat the inner side of your upper arm with your arm over your head using stationary circles all the way down to the inguinal (groin) nodes and across the axilla (arm pit).
16. Treat the inner and outer sides of your elbow with stationary circles. Follow up along the entire area with stationary circles as desired.
17. Treat the inner and outer sides of your forearm with stationary circles.
18. Treat your wrist and fingers with stationary circles, using your whole hand and/or finger tips as desired.
19. Follow up with stationary circles across your front and down toward your groin while using deep, diaphragmatic breathing techniques.
